One And Half Inches Of Rain in Storm

NEWS NOTES

Starting Tuesday afternoon ching the district and holding up and continuing during the night and all day Wednesday, one and a half inches of rain fell, dren-field work for the balance of the week at least. A little work was done Tuesday morning, but by noon the land was too wet for farm implements to work satisfactorily.

Wheat seeding is possibly 50 p.c. completed, and beets probably 65 p.c. seeded. Just what this delay will do to farmer's plans for seeding operations will not be known until the land dries. It may be that flax, barley or some such crop will be substituted for at least a part of the planned wheat acreage. Roads are drying again now and hay fields and pastures are as green and pretty as a lawn. The first cutting of alfalfa should be very good one as the roots have had all the moisture they can possibly hold.

NEWS NOTES

Vern Henry was busy Monday doing some painting at King Motors Garage. It is receiving another coat of white.

E. E. Reithman painted the interior of Hall's Barber Shop last week, and the white paint and kalsomine applied certainly made the inside of the shop look spotless.

Send in your news items folks, please. They all help to make your paper more interesting.

Town workmen were out in the lane west of the Anderson Beet dump Saturday and Monday repairing the telephone line which runs out to the Town wells. It had been blown down by the wind and was hanging dangerously over the C.P.R. railway tracks.

Canada's building at the Empire Exhibition at Glasgow, and the exhibits of Canada's beauties and products held their Majesties the King and Queen for fifteen minutes when they officially opened the show recently. It is stated that critics of these exhibitions and of Canada's part in them would change their mind if they were able to view the present show in the Dominion's buildings at Glasgow.

MRS. JAS. FISHER

HOME AGAIN

Mrs. Jas. Fisher is home again after having spent the greater part of the winter visiting with her children and other relatives in various parts of the United States. Leaving here she went to Missoula, Montana and spent some time with her son Neil, and family, and from there she journeyed to Tacoma, Washington, where she visited with a brother, James Stewart, whom she had not seen for 38 years.

She next went to Logan, Utah to visit with her son Kimball and family there. Kimball is a druggist in Logan, and while there she spent a day at the Agricultural College, where her granddaughter Wyora Scoville is attending. It was Co-ed day and the parents of all the children were supposed to register so that Mrs. Fisher registered for Wyora's guardian.

A very pleasant day was spent at the College where Mrs. Fisher met many of Wyora's friends and acquaintances. While there Lavonne Meeks hurried up to Mrs. Fisher, very glad to see some one from home. Mrs. Fisher is home again, glad to be back from a most enjoyable trip, but like all travellers "there's no place like home."

A. Stenhouse of the Northern Electric Co. Ltd., Calgary was a business visitor at Fromm's Jewelry on Saturday.

E. T. Rogers, President of the Rogers Sugar Company is a visitor in Raymond and was a guest at the Rotary Luncheon on Monday last.

J. O. Hicken was the speaker at the Rotary meeting on Monday last, speaking on the subject of Insurance.

Leland S. Wall, Linotype operator at the Cardston News Office was a Raymond visitor on Wednesday.

Christensen Bros. and Nolan Jeffrey were home over Sunday from Diamond City where they are busy dismantling the old brick hotel there. It will take several weeks to complete the job.

The two daughters of Mrs. Selman, who have been visiting her for the past month, left for their homes Thursday morning planning to visit in Portland, enroute.

Quite a number of Raymond people were in Lethbridge Saturday night for the Mart Kenney Dance in the Arena. It was reported as a great success in every way.

Following the same procedure as was used in Alberta, a leader for the Social Credit group in Saskatchewan will not be chosen until after the Provincial election on June 8.

Junior Wynder, 18, of Cardston, had a miraculous escape from death Sunday last when he fell off the rocks above Cameron Falls into the basin, lighting in the water. He swam ashore and his friends formed a human chain and pulled him out. Moss covered rocks at the top caused him to lose his balance.

There must be something in the wind. A beautiful kitchen range was installed in the residence of W. L. Jones on Monday last and we fear that the Law Fraternity of Alberta is going to lose one of its Bachelors of Law before long. We are merely supposing, of course.

Cardston's Track and Field Meet next Tuesday will be the centre of sport interest in Southern Alberta. Raymond will likely be represented as usual, but we don't know how strong. We have not witnessed the interest that has characterized their preparation in former years.

It is stated that the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. at Trail will spend $250,000 in the erection of 150 houses this year. Bennett and White Construction Co. of Calgary have the contract, and the houses will be 5 room one-storey homes 20 similar houses will also be erected at Kimberley by the same company.

$1,200 will be made available to the Alberta Government for prizes for the destruction of crows by the Ducks Unlimited association, it has been announced; and this same organization announces that over $200,000 will be awarded as prizes for the destruction of pests over chance for hunters to make Western Canada. Here will be a some good money and at the same time rid the province of the pests which kill so much game by robbing the nests of the eggs.

Aaronic Priesthood Day Last Sunday

Sunday, May 15th, was the one hundred and ninth anniversary of the restoration of the Aaronic Priesthood. The program, which was outlined in Salt Lake City, and was supposed to be Church wide, was carried out as follows in Raymond.

The Provincial Government is distributing folders again carrying the information regarding the destruction of crows, magpies and gophers over the Province and is offering substantial prizes in this work. School district, Gun Clubs and Municipal officers will have these folders for distribution to interested parties it is announced.

By defeating the Chicago All-Stars 40-31 Saturday night to take three games in a row, the Edmonton Grads retain possession of the coveted Underwood trophy for another year at least. Scores in the three games were totaled at Grads 122, Chicago 90. Saturday's game was nip and tuck until the last quarter when the Chicago players tired and the Grads shot ahead, led by Noel MacDonaid Edmonton centre, who in the three games scored a total of 53 points. The next challenge game will be played with Cleveland.

NEWS NOTES

Alec Harper of the Remington Rand Co., Lethbridge, was a Raymond visitor Thursday.

The shower Tuesday morning stopped some farmers from working. Those using press drills said the rain caused the drill to ball up a bit.

A. D. Woolley, who is in the Galt Hospital at Lethbridge, is showing steady progress, and as soon as his condition will permit an operation will be performed.

Premier Aberhart and Glen MacLachlan, Chairman of the Social Credit Board left Edmonton Monday for a speaking tour in Saskatchewan.

P. J. Christensen, pioneer and respected citizen of Raymond, is enjoying a visit now from two of his sisters from the Bee Hive state of Utah. Naturally he is greatly enjoying their company.

Lloyd MacPhee is awaiting delivery of his new Ford V8 one ton truck from King Motors, which has been ordered some weeks, but to date King's have not been able to get delivery of it.

Mrs. W. D. Herridge, wife of Canada's former United States minister, Hon. W. D. Herridge, and sister of the Hon. R. B. Bennett, passed away in New York last Thursday and funeral services were held in Vancouver on Wednesday of this week.

Saskatchewan's Provincial election has been called for June 8, so that a whirlwind campaign will be inaugurated now. In announcing the date, Premier Patterson is reported to have said, "If we vote now the Liberals will win again, but if we wait too long anything may happen." Now people are wondering just what he meant.

This is "air-mail" week in the United States, and celebrations are being held all over that country in commemoration of the twentieth year of air mail flying. One mail and passenger plane flying east from the Pacific Coast made a non-stop flight of something over sixteen hundred miles in a little over eight hours on Monday last.

Regular Literary meeting in the High School was held Thursday afternoon. Principal Paul Redd was the principal speaker, speaking on early days of High School in Raymond. He also spoke on the Swimming Pool and urged the students to co-operate in taking care of it. The school paper was read and after that Mr. Jacobs announced Grade X as the winner of the Penman for having supplied the best Literary program during the current year.

Ian Campbell, 21, of Woodhouse, was killed last Friday afternoon when the car he was driving was struck by a gravel train at a level crossing near Woodhouse. He had been working with the gravel crew on the government highway and was due to report at 4:00 p.m. for work, being on his way there when the accident happened. It is believed that a high wind blowing at the time prevented his hearing the whistle of the gravel train. The driver of the gravel train, Postmaster at Woodhouse was assisted by the train crew in removing the remains of his fatally injured son from the car which was very badly wrecked, the engine hitting the back part of it and knocking it off the tracks turning it over.

A big Lockheed Transport was lost in the Sierra Nevada mountains Monday afternoon, and when found by a rancher on Wednesday it was discovered that all nine passengers on the ill-fated ship had perished. It is presumed that flying in stormy weather, and endeavoring to take a short-cut, the pilot came down to check his location and crashed into a mountain-side.

The plane was enroute to St. Paul, Minn., for delivery to its purchasers when the crash occurred. Those dead in the crash are: Henry Salisbury, Northwest Airlines official, his wife and two children; Mrs. Carl Squier, wife of a Lockheed official; Wid Wiley, Lockheed test pilot in charge of the plane; Miss Dinle, Northwest Airlines employee and Miss Lola Tottey.

WEDDING BELLS

EVANS — PETERSON

LET'S CLEAN UP

We congratulate all those citizens who are painting up the spring and hope that all who can will follow suit. There is something that spells permanency and peace in the care and improvement of homes and surroundings, and it is a very healthy sign when people are interested in these movements. While many will find themselves unable to paint, and others do not need it, all of us can clean up and dispose of the accumulation of rubbish that is such an eyesore to the casual visitor to the Town.

While roads have kept our Town very busy this spring, in order to keep them passable, arrangements are being made now so that he will be able to cover the Town and remove all the rubbish from the streets and homes of our citizens. Get your trash ready, preferably in an old tub or container of some kind as this facilitates the work of cleaning up, and the container will be left for another load.

It will not be many weeks until the flowers are blooming and the gardens are in blossom, and what a fine sight it makes around any home to see a nice array of blossoming flowers, and a healthy and well kept garden. Besides the appearance, one can't help but think, "well, whoever lives there certainly enjoys the beauty of flowers and the benefit of a nice garden." We appreciate too, that these things take work and plenty of it, but happy is the man or woman either, who enjoys this kind of work, because it is healthy and invigorating, and enhances one's appreciation of nature and the beautiful.

Finances put the measure out to the Paint campaign, and while it is nice, judgment has to be used in this, although at the present price of paints and varnishes locally, a few dollars will go a long way in this matter. However, with respect to well kept surroundings, and a flower garden, work is the main thing, and because of the benefit individually and collectively of a neat

Our Edmonton Letter

(By T. B. Windross)

Edmonton, May 16—Mass attack inside and outside Alberta on the Social Credit government's debt legislation of the last session, and the demands made upon the Dominion Government for disallowance of the five acts constituting that legislation, found Alberta much in the news again this week.

Appeals to the Federal Government to quash the legislation came from many points, with the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce assuming the lead with a formal petition pleading for exercise of the Dominion's power to disallow Provincial legislation.

The plea for disallowance was made chiefly on the ground that

NEWS NOTES

A fall of rain commenced early Tuesday morning, but as it was so light seeding operations continued for at least a good part of the forenoon.

The Sugar City Municipality is expecting delivery this week of a Model D7 Caterpillar, 61 horsepower engine, replacing the Monarch "Cat" which they traded in last week on the new one. Art Garner says he is expecting a phone call any minute to go into Lethbridge for the new machine. Then watch the dirt fly, eh, boys.

the acts were against public interest and public policy and would wreak havoc not only upon Alberta but upon the people throughout Canada. The five acts protested, passed at the recent session of the Alberta legislature were:

1. The Home Owner's Security act, which in the case of a farm home, prohibited any proceedings where the mortgage was dated prior to March 1st of this year, and in the case of a city or town home, required the mortgagee wishing to recover his investment to deposit $2,000 with the court, to be handed over to the mortgagor if foreclosure is effected, regardless of the value of the property or of the mortgage.

2. The Debt Adjustment act amendment, which in effect put all creditors at the complete mercy of a board appointed and controlled by the Aberhart government.

3. The Limitations of Action act amendment, which said in effect that if a creditor signs nothing and pays nothing for the next to years, his debt is cancelled then and he owes nothing.

4. The Tax Recovery act consolidation, which contained a new provision saying that if a mortgagor or any of his close relatives redeems a property which has been defaulted for taxes, that property is thereafter deemed to be free of encumbrances. Thereby the act actually encouraged mortgagors to default their taxes, have their land seized, and then receive it back again free of mortgage debt and all other obligations.

5. The Securities Tax act, which required registration of every individual first, second or third mortgage and subjected them all to a tax of two per cent, regardless of the status of the mortgage—whether any interest or payment was being paid on it, or by whom it was held—and imposing fantastic penalties, running up to 60 per cent plus $360 a year for non-compliance.

All these acts were condemned as being parts of a deliberate attempt by the Government to entice Alberta citizens to repudiate their debts, and a calculated effort to prohibit honest creditors from meeting their debts. The acts were declared widely, even in all pulpits, to be nothing but legalized confiscation and robbery, aimed at vote-catching and sure to be the cause of the collapse of the public morals and morals of the people of Alberta, with dire results upon the very people the legislation was supposed to be assisting. Many thousands of Alberta citizens who have invested their meagre savings within the province would be ruined financially by the legislation, it was shown, and the whole province could only suffer in the near future through loss of investment capital, dominion confidence and public initiative.

While the Federal government was weighing disallowance of the Alberta debt acts, the Alberta government was pouring its energies into Saskatchewan, leading the Social Credit party's political campaign there. Premier Aberhart himself left his own province to jump from town to town in Saskatchewan, shouting for support for his party in the approaching election there. Early indications were that he would not have things all his own way, for many of the electors in the sister province are acquainted with the Aberhart government's record of impossible administration in Alberta.

It was no surprise around the legislative buildings in Edmonton when Hon. E. C. Manning left his office here, and the province, too devote full energies to Saskatchewan as Social Credit's campaign manager there. Nor did it cause any surprise when Premier Aberhart, Hon. Lucien Maynard and others followed him. The speeches here at the time of the East Edmonton federal campaign, when Mr. Aberhart and the others condemned Dominion cabinet ministers for daring to come to Alberta and speak in a political campaign for a federal seat, were remembered of course. But even when Mr. Aberhart and the others were making those speeches, it was known that they were planning to invade Saskatchewan on speaking tours. And although East Edmonton is part of Canada, Saskatchewan is no part of Alberta.

It remains to be seen, from results, just how pressing was the invitation to the Alberta government members to invade Saskatchewan for this provincial election.

Public protest against the Production tax is growing throughout Alberta, judging by reports received here, and Mr. Aberhart himself and some of his supporters have adopted strange defences.

They said that the tax would not apply to things like butter and milk. But the act specifically says that dairy products like everything else produced on a farm, are to be taxed. They said that the tax would not apply to goods exchanged between farmers or sold direct to consumers, but the act says that everyone producing and selling or dealing in any way with farm products must pay the tax. Men around the legislative buildings here have begun to wonder if some of the government members, including the Minister of Agriculture, have read the act at all.

Hon. J. C. Bowen, lieutenant-governor of Alberta, moved out of Government House last week and into a room at MacDonald Hotel—the same hotel where Premier Aberhart has a luxurious suite. They both attended the University convocation last Saturday, the Premier driving up in his government-bought limousine, driven by his chauffeur, and the lieutenant-governor arriving in a hired taxi. But it was the lieutenant-governor who seemed the prouder. Government House has been locked up, because no new use has been found for it. Even the gates to the grounds are locked, so that no one can get in even to see the gardens.

Monty Wallace has just arrived in California, having broken the East-West cross country airplane record. Natalie Wade, mis taken by him for a newspaper reporter, writes the exclusive account of Monty's arrival, and succeeds in securing a trial job with a paper in exchange for the story. Natalie becomes attached to Monty.

Although she discovers Monty's love for her is not sincere, Natalie admits that she loves him. She is assigned by her paper to report Monty's activities for publication. Jimmy Hale, the newspaper's photographer, becomes Natalie's co-worker.

Natalie interviews Jabe Marion, a wealthy airplane builder, who decides to build a record-breaking 'round the world plane for Monty. Marion's daughter, Sunny, exquisitely beautiful, is attracted to Monty. She invites Natalie to dine with her, when they meet the aviator unexpectedly.

Natalie discovers that Sunny is jealous of her friendship with Monty, and that she is trying to prevent them from being alone. After driving to a mountain resort with Sunny and Jimmy, Monty again declares his love for Natalie.

Sunny attempts to drive Natalie from Monty's attention by climbing a high wall. She almost loses her balance and is pulled back by Monty. Jimmy later asks Natalie to consider his love for her if she refuses Monty.

Natalie induces Monty to set out with her in an airplane search for two missing aviators. At dusk Monty lands the plane in the open country, where he don't take too long—we are all dining together at the Traveller's Club tonight—I'll send my car at seven."

A moment later the arms of two policemen had borne Natalie to her door. Monty had followed under his own power. Before he could press the buzzer, the door was opened from within.

"Surprise!" chorused the voices of Jimmy Hale and Sunny Marion. Their eyes stared at uniformed men, the tattered clothes of Monty and Natalie. Sunny rushed forward.

"What happened?" she demanded. "Yes, what's the matter?" exclaimed Jimmy.

"It's all right," assured Monty, catching Natalie in his arms.

"Just a little accident at the airport."

He turned to the policemen. "Thanks, boys," he said—but even as he said it, his escorts had left.

"Let me help," insisted Jimmy, catching Natalie from the other side. Sunny was equally concerned. Only when both the girl and the flier were seated comfortably did Sunny venture to ask what had happened.

In a few words, Monty recounted the experiences of the earlier morning. When he had finished, Jimmy leaped to his feet.

"Didn't I tell you!" he shouted at Sunny. "We should have stayed instead of trying to pull a surprise by being here first when they arrived. Then turning to Natalie, he added:

"I'm sorry, Nat. We thought it would be a good trick to pull on both of you—to leave you to meet each other out there in the field and still be able to surprise you here."

"Forget it," Monty protested.

room.

"Have one?" offered Jimmy, rising to fill another glass.

"Keep sitting," said Sunny.

"I'll fix it."

"It was a close shave for Natalie," remarked Sunny, pressing the siphon into her glass. "Three more grabs and that gang would have had more than their money's worth!"

Though Sunny's casual conversation was obviously designed to ease the tension of the situation, her own strain was apparent.

Monty had been engaged to Sunny, though by now both Jimmy and Natalie knew that the flier had disowned his promise made under the pressure of Sunny's scheming.

That Sunny was now prepared to give up Monty, could not be doubted. Had she not openly avowed her love for Jimmy, at least her matrimonial intentions?

But Monty had not yet been told of this later development.

As far as he knew, Sunny could claim that he fulfill his promise of marriage, even though they had privately agreed that the successful accomplishment of his round-the-world flight would free him from her. Would Sunny live up to her word now? Or would she resort to trickery again and demand marriage?

These were the thoughts racing through Monty's mind as Sunny seated herself opposite Natalie had withdrawn. Only the three were together, Monty, Sunny and Jimmy. Sunny spoke first.

THE COW

If civilized people were ever to lapse into the worship of animals, the cow would certainly be their chief goddess, says the Ayrshire Digest. What a fountain of blessings is the cow! She is the mother of beef, the source of butter, the original cause of cheese, to say nothing of shoe horns, hair combs and leather. A gentle, amiable, ever yielding creature who has no joy in her own family affairs which she does not share with man. We rob her of her children that we may rob her of her milk, and we only care for her when the robbing may be perpetuated.

WEEKLY LETTER

INOCULATION OF LEGUME CROPS

At this season of the year, legume crops are being sown for the purpose of hay, pasture or seed production and the importance of inoculating the seed should not be overlooked. This applies particularly where land is growing these crops for the first time, but since some strains of legume bacteria are more beneficial in increasing plant growth than others, there is some reason to believe that it pays to inoculate seed even where the land has grown the same kind of crop previously. The mere formation of nodules on the roots of leguminous plants is not considered sufficient proof that the soil is properly inoculated with an efficient type of nitrogen-fixing bacteria.

Culture for inoculating the commonly grown legume crops is handled by most seed companies.

GRASSES DO BEST WHEN ACCOMPANIED BY LEGUMES

When grasses are sown either alone or in combination for hay or pasture purposes it is always a good practice to include a certain percentage of legume seed. The reason for this is that nitrogen stimulates the growth of grasses and legumes enrich the soil in nitrogen.

Certain bacteria in the soil live on the roots of legumes. Their presence is indicated by nodules formed on the fibrous roots. These bacteria extract free nitrogen from the air which the plants in turn feed upon. The legume plants do not utilize all the nitrates thus made available and the surplus is used by the grasses. Grasses, therefore, when sown along with legumes grow more vigorously and are more productive than where sown alone.

When a short growing grass such as Kentucky Blue grass is seeded, it is advisable to use a short growing legume such as White Dutch clover. A mixture of 20 pounds of the grass to one pound of the latter makes a good combination. For pasture purposes on irrigated land, or in areas where moisture is usually plentiful this mixture should be sown at the rate of about 30 pounds per acre. Where an abundant supply of moisture can be provided at all times this combination sown at 10 pounds or more per acre makes an ideal lawn grass.

Where a taller grass, such as crested wheat grass or brome grass is chosen, a taller growing legume should also be chosen. A mixture of 10 pounds of brome grass and 4 pounds of alfalfa seed per acre is found to be cheap and very efficient mixture for hay or pasture purposes under irrigation and should be satisfactory in districts where moisture is plentiful. On non-irrigated land crested wheat grass may be substituted for brome grass making a mixture of crested wheat grass and alfalfa.

25 persons were burned to death Monday in a fire in the old Terminal Hotel Atlanta Georgia. Fire started in the basement and swept up the elevator shaft filling the entire brick & frame structure with flames.

DON'T OVER-RATE YOUR BANKER

He cannot perform Miracles

There would be more banks than grocery stores all over Canada if banks could perform the miracle of "creating" the means of payment out of nothing.

It is easy to confuse these two things:

- (a) The business of commercial banking, and
- (b) Control of a nation's monetary system.

Commercial banking has to do with the safe-keeping and lending of money and credit.

Control of a monetary system is a matter of national, governmental policy.

Chartered banks finance production and commerce.

Monetary policy in any country is a matter for the national government itself, either directly, or through a central bank.

The Dominion Parliament established Canada's central bank in 1934—the Bank of Canada. Its purpose was declared by Parliament in the very first paragraph of the Act of Incorporation, as follows:

"To regulate credit and currency in the best interests of the economic life of the nation, to control and protect the external value of the national monetary unit and to mitigate by its influence fluctuations in the general level of production, trade, prices and employment so far as may be possible within the scope of monetary action, and generally to promote the economic and financial welfare of the Dominion."

It is for governments alone to determine a nation's monetary policy. Differing conditions of debt and trade may make what is wise for one country unwise for another.

Printing "tickets"—as currency has been called in some sections—entirely out of step with production would make everything you buy cost you more. A Canadian woman living in Germany during that country's inflation in 1923 had to pay 65,000,000 marks for an overcoat, and later 1,000,000,000 marks for a postage stamp! The business of commercial banking is something to be considered by itself, apart from central banking.

A commercial bank takes deposits. There are two kinds of them. For convenience, call them "savings" and "current". Say you are a workman, or a farmer. After you've paid your living costs out of your wage, or out of the proceeds of your crop, you have some dollars left over. Because you do not want to spend them at once you deposit them in a savings account.

That is a savings deposit. As distinguished from this is the "current" account. Say you are a merchant. You have expenses to meet day by day and therefore always carry a balance in an account against which you issue cheques for your business needs.

That is a current account. Let us say you have $100 in that account and you need $1,000 to meet some bills. You borrow it from the bank.

You give the manager your note and he places $1,000 to your credit as a deposit in your current account. Immediately your balance goes up to $1,100—$1,000 of it being derived directly from a loan.

It is unlike a savings deposit in this respect: You intend to spend it at once. You immediately issue cheques against it. You borrowed the money for business purposes, prepared to pay interest because the transaction was a profitable one to you. Soon most of the thousands has been paid out.

For most of the rest of the term of the loan your deposit is at its lowest. Then, before your note is due, you gather money to repay. Up goes your deposit to its peak again.

Then you repay. Your deposit promptly drops back to say your original $100—plus the profit you have made, by the use of the borrowed money.

No matter whether bank deposits are savings or current, your bank must keep on hand cash reserves adequate to meet any demands from day to day.

When its loans are increased, not only is more cash paid out—as was the case with your $1,000 loan; but your bank's cash reserves also become lower in proportion to total deposits.

A bank must not unduly expand its lending operations, for then its cash will fall below the proportion which experience has shown to be necessary to meet the day-to-day demands of depositors. This very fact serves as an automatic check against excessive lending.

Your bank cannot know just when you will walk in to withdraw your deposit—but it must be ready to pay you, in full, in cash, when you do turn up.

RETAIL SALES IN CANADA

Evidence of the manner in which Canada has weathered the economic storm which struck the United States several months ago is seen in the Dominion Bureau of Statistics' report on retail sales for March. Retail sales, indicating as they do the day to day purchase of the people, are one important index of economic conditions in the country.

According to the report retail sales in Canada gained 15 per cent in March over February, and were only three per cent below the March 1937 figures. This information is based upon returns from stores in thirteen lines of business in all part of Canada.

The Bureau intimates that March 1938 business might have equalled that of March 1937 had it not been for the fact that the Easter holiday season fell in March this year, whereas a year ago the holidays were delayed until the middle of April. —From the Liberal Monthly.

A prominent relief official points out that due to the lateness of the season in certain sections of Saskatchewan that, if seed is available, many farmers would be well advised to divert some part of their crop lands to flax.

Inasmuch as it is possible to sow flax, with satisfactory results, much later than wheat it may prove very advantageous to farmers who still have some part of their acreage where they can prepare a good clean seed bed as that is essential to the successful cultivation of flax.

Fighting Game Fish Across Canada

HOLIDAY opportunities in the thousands of lakes, rivers and streams of Canada afford fishing opportunities which are unequalled anywhere in the world. The wide stretches of the Dominion are liberally supplied with forest and lake-land, abounding with game fish and animals, where lovers of the great outdoors can find a sports district to suit their every whim.

Fishing conditions are so varied in Canada and the species of game fish so numerous that a small booklet is required merely to list all the fish and regulations of the different sections. Deep-sea fishing is found on both ocean coasts, for half-ton tuna off Nova Scotia and equally large sharks near Vancouver Island; five-pound small-mouth black bass at the Devil's Gap Camp, Lake of the Woods district, and in hundreds of lakes in Eastern Canada, vie for popularity with 40-pound muskellunge at such favored resorts as the French River Camp in Ontario; fighting trout of several species are found everywhere in Canada, most popular regions among anglers being the Laurentian Mountains, north of Montreal, or the mile-high lakes surrounding Banff and Lake Louise in the Canadian Rockies; and mighty salmon bring joy to the hearts of anglers in the Maritimes. These few highlights of Canada's many fishing opportunities illustrate why Canadian sportsmen fishing in their home waters are joined every year by so many thousands of anglers from the United States and overseas. Conditions, possibilities and regulations vary so widely in different sections that anglers planning to visit strange districts would do well to find out all about them in advance from A. O. Seymour, general tourist agent, Canadian Pacific Railway, Montreal, or from fishing booklets obtainable at all Canadian Pacific offices.
